The SC3000 controller was first produced in 1985 and finally discontinued in 1999 and during its 14-year production, Bailoy sold over 1000 controllers in 20 different countries.

One of the most advanced and reliable controllers of its time in the irrigation industry and still being used by many sites to this day, we had to make the sad decision to cease offering a repair service in 2012. This was due to the unavailability and cost of spares and workshop repair time which compared with modern products made it uncompetitive.

If you still run your irrigation system with an SC3000, then contact us for information on upgrading to one of the new GTI range of controllers
